According to the British "New Scientist" magazine, from NASA's "Apollo" was the last time to leave the Lunar Module the lunar surface to the present, has 36 years history. While NASA astronauts set to return to the moon program, but the plan is only a confused impression with this sharp contrast, some private teams are to compete for approximately 20 million U.S. dollars, established two years ago, "Google Moon X "prize and do not give way, want to be ahead of competitors by developing a robot to the moon surface.

Government should not intervene in a purely civilian nature of the

To date, there are already 19 teams registered to participate in Google Lunar X Prize Challenge. In order to gains 20 million U.S. dollars in cash awards, teams must be allowed to land rover on the lunar surface, and after taking pictures of the landing site road 500 meters, all of these tasks must be completed before the end of 2012. According to rules of the game, the first team to complete the task will be 20 million U.S. dollars in the bag. Runner-up team will receive five million U.S. dollars prize money, was found after the United States or the former Soviet Union mission to the moon remains the team are available to 5 million U.S. dollars prize money.

And aims to reward the human into space, like the Ansari X Prize, Google Lunar X Prize to establish the purpose is to encourage and promote the development of commercial space exploration. California lunar X Prize competition team "Fred Network" (Frednet) head佛瑞德布尔Qiao Yasi said: "Everything we have done is to prove that an idea that we are able to lower the cost of completion and the Government same mission to the moon. "

Lunar X Prize competition teams from three continents over 12 countries, students, engineers, CEO and entrepreneurs to act as a team leader role. In order to successfully fly to the moon, landing, taking pictures and then the task of trekking on the surface, the participating teams took a different strategy. "Fred network" has taken an open approach, anyone can prepare for the lunar landing mission of this team to contribute their ideas.

布尔乔亚斯said: "All right of the people interested in the strength of the co-operation can produce far more than a small
